THE EU'S NON-MEMBERS INCORPORATION WITHOUT PARTICIPATION

CONFERENCE

PHILANTHROPY HOUSE BRUSSELS

23 JUNE 2014

ARENA Centre for European Studies University of Oslo

THE EU'S NON-MEMBERS INCORPORATION WITHOUT PARTICIPATION

The Norwegian Constitution was adopted on 17 May 1814 and is the second oldest written Constitution in the World still in existence.

The Bicentenary of the Norwegian Constitution in 2014 will raise awareness of what the Constitution means today and what role it will play in our future democracy. European integration extends way beyond the 28 EU member states, with a number of neighbouring countries being members of the internal market and Schengen. Which models of affiliation are currently in place, and to what extent do these relations suffer from participatory gaps?

This conference will discuss the Norwegian perspective in particular, but also EU-Switzerland relations.

In 2014, Norway celebrates the bicentennial of the Constitution as well as the 20th anniversary of the European Economic Area (EEA) Agreement. Norway has become deeply entangled in the European integration project through the EEA agreement, Schengen and other agreements. This conference will explore Norway's EU affiliation based on a recent book: The Norwegian Paradox, which points to several problems from a democratic perspective.

Switzerland is affiliated with the EU through bilateral agreements. What lessons can we learn from the Swiss perspective? What are the democratic implications of this kind of affiliation?

NORCONE THE NORWEGIAN CONSTITUTION IN A CHANGING EUROPEAN CONTEXT

NORCONE is a research project at ARENA Centre for European Studies, University of Oslo, financed by the Research Council of Norway's Norwegian Constitution Bicentennial 2014 research initiative.

The main purpose of NORCONE is to establish the nature of the EU's constitutional developments and the constitutional implications for Norway that stem from its relationship with the EU. Are Norwegian citizens able to govern themselves autonomously through politics and law within the new European context?

Session 1

Welcome

14.00-15.10

Christopher Lord

Erik O. Eriksen

Norway's EU affiliation: Democratic self-harm?

John Erik Fossum

Surrogate representation in Brussels

Espen D. H. Olsen

The paradox of an outsider: Depoliticized citizenship

Helene Sjursen

Democracy or action capacity? Norway-EU relations in foreign and security policy

Coffee break

Session 2 15.25-16.45

Halvard Haukeland Fredriksen

The EEA and the case law of the ECJ: Incorporation without participation?

René Schwok

The EEA vs. bilateral agreements: The Swiss case

Sieglinde Gstöhl

The expansion of the EU's economic community: Lessons for the neighbours

Panel debate

Chair: Christopher Lord

16.45-17.30

Cocktail reception

PRACTICAL INFORMATION

Time: Monday 23 June 2014, 14.00-17.30

Place: Philanthropy House, Rue Royale 94, Brussels (5th floor)

The conference is free and open to anyone upon registration

Organised by ARENA Centre for European Studies, University of Oslo For questions, please contact Marit Eldholm: marit.eldholm@arena.uio.no

Registration (by 20 June):

https://nettskjema.uio.no/answer/registration-eu-non-members.html

CONTRIBUTORS

Erik O. Eriksen is professor and director at ARENA. His main research fields are political theory, public policy and European integration. His interest in legitimate rule has led to numerous publications on democracy in the EU, the functions and limits of the state, and deliberative democracy. His most recent books are The Normativity of the European Union and The Norwegian Paradox (co-editor).

John Erik Fossum is professor at ARENA. His main fields of academic interest include political theory, democracy and constitutionalism in the EU and Canada, Europeanisation, and transformation of the nation state. He is co-author of The Constitution's Gift and co-editor of The Norwegian Paradox.

Halvard Haukeland Fredriksen is associate professor at the University of Bergen and associate of the Bergen Center for Competition Law and Economics. His main fields of research are EU and European Economic Area law, in particular their relations to Norwegian law. He contributes to the book The Norwegian Paradox.

Sieglinde Gstöhl is professor and director of studies at the College of Europe, Bruges. Her research interests include EU external relations, theories of regional integration and international relations, global governance, international political economy and small states. Among her books are Europe's Near Abroad and Reluctant Europeans: Sweden, Norway, and Switzerland in the Process of Integration.

Christopher Lord is professor at ARENA. His main fields of academic interest are the study of democracy, legitimacy and the European Union. He has published extensively on these topics, including political economy, parliamentary democracy, representation and political parties.

Espen D. H. Olsen is senior researcher at ARENA. He holds a PhD in political science from the European University Institute, Florence. His main research interests include European polity-building and constitution-making, citizenship, citizen deliberation and deliberative democracy. He contributes to the book The Norwegian Paradox.

René Schwok is professor at the Global Studies Institute and the Department of Political Science and International Relations, University of Geneva and holder of the Jean Monnet Chair in Political Science. His research interests include EU politics and European integration, the EU's external dimension and the history of Switzerland. Among his books are Switzerland – European Union: An Impossible Membership?

Helene Sjursen is professor at ARENA. Her main fields of academic interest include the EU as an international actor, the EU's foreign and security policy and EU enlargement, and she has written extensively on the democratic aspects of the EU's foreign and security policy. She contributes to the book The Norwegian Paradox.

NORCONE BOOKS:

Det norske paradoks: Om Norges forhold til Den europeiske union

The book The Norwegian Paradox: On Norway's Relations with the EU is edited by Erik O. Eriksen and John Erik Fossum and appeared with Universitetsforlaget in January 2014).

The book points to several problems related to Norway's affiliation from a democratic perspective, and discusses the constitutional implications of the EEA, Schengen and Norway's other agreements with the EU.

The Normativity of the European Union

The book is authored by Erik O. Eriksen and appeared with Palgrave Macmillan in February 2014).

Reconstructing the integration process with a view to the Eurozone crisis, Eriksen provides an insight into the conditions for integration and the nature of the EU. He identifies the main reasons for European integration as imperatives; as normative musts.

Conference organised by:

