Examination

[ANTH4610]

The student will upload three revised versions of the above-mentioned papers (the selection of which will be announced during the last lecture).

[ANTH4620]

In addition to one mandatory oral presentation, eight short reflection papers on individual lecture content (up to 300 words) will be submitted throughout the semester. You will have to submit three revised versions of the above-mentioned papers (the selection of which will be announced during the last lecture) to be evaluated at the end of the semester.

Endringsforslag og begrunnelse:

In practice, students have never written eight reflection papers but instead seven, because we use the first lecture (of the eight) to explain what we mean by a reflection paper and show them how to do it. Hence, the suggestion that the course web page reflects this practice.

Second, students have reported that reflection of only up to 300 words is too little to express a fruitful argument and show their understanding. I agree with this concern and would therefore suggest we increase the wording to “up to 500” words.

Adjusted wording:

In addition to one mandatory oral presentation, seven short reflection papers on individual lecture content (up to 500 words) will be submitted throughout the semester. The student will upload three revised versions of the above-mentioned papers (the selection of which will be announced during the last lecture).
